The short and distort campaign on $sava is perpetrating a genocide on 250,000 Alzheimer's victims from the ~6 month they have caused to an approved @US_FDA trial. Nobody can deny Simuflam has a chance to help AD victims. The @DOJCrimDiv and @SEC are allowing this and must act!

It's never the other way around, right? I see it as the money being poured into this very questionable science as a financial game is being diverted from other uses that might actually provide benefit. The genocide stuff is beyond the pale.

It's really over the line, and you're 100% correct. It's not that I don't want AD cured or treated--as someone who's lost family members to it, of course I want meds for it. But we get those with more and better science, not stock pumping flim flam.

The FDA is allowing Ph3. NIH has funded some. SEC has cleared. Why do you trust internet scientist more than those three entities?

The halls of shattered dream biotech bankruptcies are littered with companies that failed Ph3 and had funding. Thanks to internet sleuths like @Adrian_H @MicrobiomDigest and @MidwestHedgie we just have the luxury of seeing the scam sooner than later.

Biotech is a high risk investment category. Most fail. So predicting it is like predicting clouds will be in the sky. The "slueths" have missed many times and use horrible tactics (ie discrediting rape victims). Characterizing $sava as a fraud is very wrong and out of line.

You were comparing SAVA skeptics to purveyors of genocide yesterday. Maybe take several seats on "out of line" bucko.
The WB forgeries alone support calling it a fraud.

Severe interference with an fda approved trial on a drug that is known safe IS killing people because there is a good chance this drug works. I'm defending the right of the company and people to be in the trial without manipulation.

There is no proof whatsoever that Simuflam can save lives. Based on results presented by the company (not yet peer reviewed) it might halt cognitive decline - but there is no way of knowing if it increases life span. Saying the skeptics are committing genocide is out of line.

There is also no evidence that it is not going to save lives. That is my point. It's on a phase 3 trial. Let them do it. Families in the open label are saying it brought their moms and dads back. Even if for a few years it is saving lives but it could be the cure to AD.

That is exactly the point. These people are trying to prevent $sava from rejecting the null hypothesis by running a phase three trial. They earned a right to do that. How does that make me a zealot?

Fucking hilarious. You are officially an idiot. If you think ANYTHING but a safety concern is going to stop P3 at this point, you shouldn't even be on Twitter you should be going back to your job restocking shelves after your break.

Be careful with this line of thinking.

They HAVE been fabricating results, & the justification for the Ph3 was a charade. They're breaking critical scientific and ethical norms that enable human clinical research, as well as regulations. It's 100% made up scientific fraud.

It does not matter if the fake drug is harmless. The patients in these trials are still taking risks (lumbar punctures) and not getting to try other trials that might work. Hundreds of millions of $ will be wasted (and some getting shunted to Remi). Investors will be screwed.

And they are destroying the integrity of the system that everybody is trying to honestly operate in. They're cheating on the exam.
